TIME TO TALK

How important is it to feel a sense of togetherness?

12 Tips for an autism-friendly Christmas

Christmas can be a magical time, but if someone in your family is on the spectrum, there's extra pressure to get it right. These simple pointers may help:

- 1 Have a designated place to relax and retreat, especially if you plan to have a houseful of guests. You could even label it as a 'quiet room'.
- 2 Be clear about when friends, family or neighbours may visit. Write up a schedule and stick it on the fridge or somewhere it is easily accessible.
- 3 Use advent calendars to your advantage - a countdown can be really beneficial to make people aware of upcoming events.
- 4 Some families opt for a one-day Christmas, when decorations and lights are put up and taken down in the same day.
- 5 Alternatively, how about decorating a designated 'Christmas room' to limit the impact of changes to other rooms in the house.
- 6 Look at the world through the eyes of your loved one - what aspects of Christmas do they enjoy? There are no rules - Christmas can be whatever works for you and your family.

12 Tips for an autism-friendly Christmas

- 7 Have some Christmas-free time away from the festivities - this can be helpful to reduce anxiety. A quiet stroll in the park or feeding the ducks could help, if this is what you normally do to relax.
- 8 Father Christmas can cause anxiety. Prepare your loved one by showing them pictures, or perhaps Father Christmas could drop off presents at a family member's house instead.
- 9 Find out about local events, such as autism-friendly grottos and pantomimes. Decide which events your loved one would enjoy and book in advance.
- 10 Christmas dinners can be individual, so stick to what you know will be popular. Who says it has to be roast turkey?
- 11 On Christmas Day, try and keep to a routine that suits your family. If you need to make changes, then prepare in advance, using photos or social stories to explain what is happening.
- 12 Christmas is about enjoying yourself. It's your time, too, so always ask for help from family and friends if you need it.

Wishing you a very merry Christmas and happy New Year!
